Dayton Aerospace Experience Overview

30+ Years Average Experience in all Disciplines

Working with both government and industry organizations allows us to better understand how the other side operates and their expectations.

Who We Are

Dayton Aerospace is a veteran owned small business serving government and industry organizations for 25 years. Personnel are all retired senior military or civilian, with 30+ years experience, covering all technical and management disciplines. Each have held senior-level government positions such as System Program Director, Program Executive Officer, Product and Logistics Center Commander, Lab Commander, Chief Engineer, Chief of Contracting, and Chief of Financial Management. Dayton Aerospace specializes in providing hands-on support to both government and industry customers using these highly experienced practitioners; they have unique credentials to provide client teams with reach back to former senior-level government personnel.

Why We're Successful

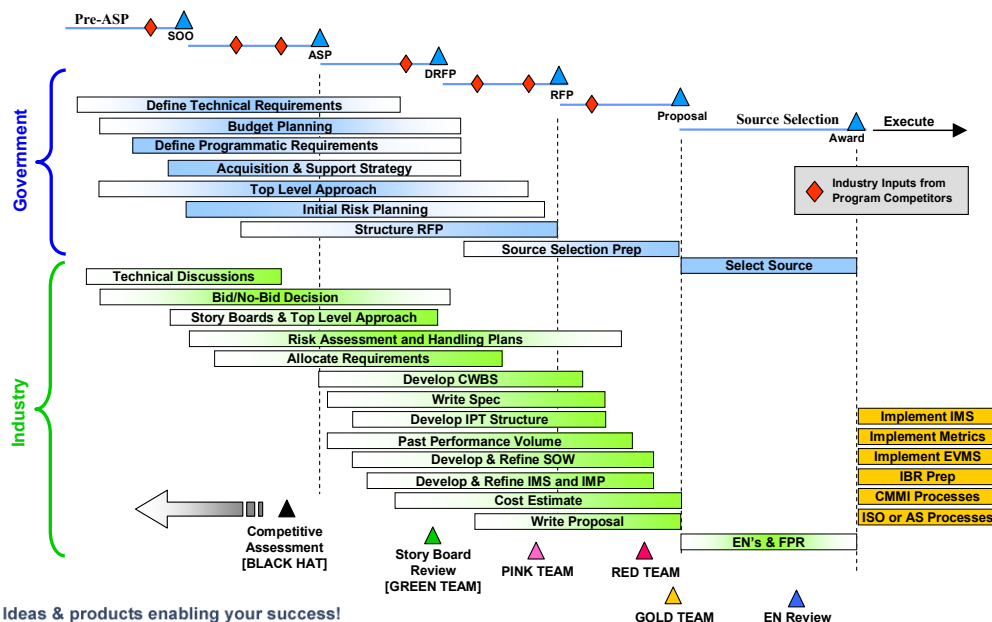

Working with both government and industry organizations allows us to better understand how the other side operates and their expectations. We have assisted government program teams developing all necessary planning, strategies, and documentation necessary for a successful source selection, contract award and project execution phases. Similarly, we have assisted industry in all aspects of numerous highly successful proposal submittals. Government and industry processes are necessarily very interrelated; our personnel are experts in all phases and all activities.

How We Can Help

In addition to hands-on assistance in these areas, Dayton Aerospace also offers an extensive array of training and workshops tailored to specific client needs and requirements.

Our associates have actively managed and participated in each of these activities and have the background and experience to make significant contributions
